CIRCULAR.

Collegiate and Military Institute.

This institute was founded in the spring of the present year. The marked favor with which it was received at its commencement and the numerous applications for the admission of students, far exceeding its original limitation and provisions, prove that it has met a felt want in this community, and affords the assurance of its successful and permanent establishment, under careful and competent administration.

The associated Principals, in their plans for the coming Scholastic Year, aim to afford, in connection with healthful physical training, the most liberal opportunities for acquiring a thorough and comprehensive education. Full provisions will be made for instruction not only in the Elementary and advanced branches of an English Education, but also in Classical and Commercial studies, so that young men and boys may be fitted for College, as well as for the counting room and general business. For those desirous of pursuing the study of FRENCH OR GERMAN, MUSIC, ADVANCED DRAWING AND PAINTING, the instruction of Professors of experience and approved ability will be secured.

It is the intention of the Principals to devote their utmost energies to the physical, mental and moral culture of those placed under their care, and they trust that their experience as educators, with earnest devotion to their work, will enable them to fulfill all the just expectations of parents, guardians and friends.

Boarding Pupils.

Provisions have been made to receive a limited number of BOARDING PUPILS into the family of one of the Principals, who has for a number of years had charge of a large boarding school for young ladies. Students whose parents are not residents of the city will be received to the comforts of a pleasent home, and surrounded with a careful christian guardianship.

Location.

The Institute occupies for school purposes the building long known as "THE SHAKSPERE BUILDING, and more recently as "THE HARRISBURG FEMALE SEMINARY," situated in Locust street. The situation, while it is central and convenient to the street railway and the Capitol grounds, is in a portion of the city free from stores and noise. The school and class rooms are spacious, well ventilated and lighted, and are fitted up with every necessary convenience.

Military Drill and Discipline.

Recognizing the justice of the growing sentiment in favor of physical culture, the Principals have adopted as a special feature of the system a Military drill, which constitutes one of the best calisthenic exercises to which the young can be subjected. The students are, as far as circumstances will allow, trained in the cadet exercises at West Point and other military schools. They are uniformed in a simple and tasteful dress, formed into a company under command of Capt. J. M. EYSTER, and thoroughly drilled in military tactics.

Whilst they thus enjoy the benefit of regular and systematic exercise, they are habituated to an erect, manly and graceful bearing, and prepared, should stern necessity demand in coming years, to fall naturally and easily into the ranks of their country's disciplined defenders.

Hours of recreation will be devoted to the drill exercises, so that the regular routine of study and recitation will suffer no intermission. Regular inspections will be held of the personal appearance, dress and cleanliness of the Cadets, so as to accustom them to habits of neatness, punctuality and order.

Classification and Course of Study.

Students will be arranged into three departments: Juvenile, Junior and Senior, and will be classified according to their attendance upon entering school.

The COURSE of instruction embraces the following branches, arranged according to the nature of the subjects rather than with a regard to the order and time of their pursuit. This plan has been adopted, in order that the design and scope of the system of education in the Institute may at a glance be clearly understood.

1. Common English, embracing Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Elementary History and Composition.

2. Higher English, embracing Mathematics, Physics, Elocution, Analysis of the English Language, History, Rhetoric, Logic, English and American Literature, History of Civilization, Metaphysics and Moral Science.

3. Commercial Course, embracing Penmanship, Book-Keeping and Commercial Arithmetic, with necessary parts of the English Course.

4. Classical Course. including a thorough training in Latin and Greek. Grammar, Analysis, Composition and Translation.

5. Modern Languages—French and German. Grammar, Translation and Literature.

6. Ornamental Course, including Music—Instrumental and Vocal, Drawing and Painting.

7. Military Tactics, drill and discipline.

The courses of study are optional, unless the selections are left with the Principal.

The course of instruction in the purely English studies is designed to be critical and thorough, so as to secure for students a minute and elementary knowledge of their own language, and such information and habits of observation as will furnish incentives to further acquisitions.

For those in preparation for College there will be daily recitations in Latin, Greek and Mathematics.

Such knowledge of Anatomy, Physiology and laws of health, as may be useful to the student will be communicated in appropriate course of study, illustrated with plates.

Familiar Lectures will be delivered by the Principals and others on subjects of collateral interest with the regular studies. The topics of Natural Science will be illustrated by appropriate specimens and apparatus, and a taste for reading will be fostered by access to a general library.

Calendar.

The school year is divided into two sessions. The first session begins the early part of September, and ends the last day in January; the second session begins February 3d, and ends with the close of June. The next Scholastic Year commences on Monday, September 9th, 1872.

The usual Holidays at Christmas.

Students will be received at any time during the school year, yet it is desirable that they should be present at the commencement of the session, so that they may take their places in the regular classes.

Parents who design to enter pupils are requested to make application before the opening of each session.

Expenses.
